4. Domain of specialization, investigation interests and other skills/activities (in Present research interest)

Domain of specialization

I have worked mostly with the microbial ecology and biodiversity of extreme environments, more specifically with deep-sea and low water activity biotopes. The main goal of my work is to shed some light on the enormous untapped microbial biodiversity present in marine and extreme environments, and clarify their possible role in their local environment, and identify novel genomic, physiologic, and metabolic feature, and possible industrial applications.

Present investigation interests

I am currently very interested in the study of environmental microbiology of marine and extreme biotopes. I am especially keen on exploring, characterizing, and comparing the microbial communities present in hypersaline environments (e.g. deep-sea brines, salters) using OMICS-data (e.g. genomics, metabolomics, metagenomics) and cultivation-based approaches. I am very keen on directing my research efforts towards the fields of metabolic pathway, design, optimization, and engineering and new solutions for the biosynthesis of compounds of industrial relevance. Additional points of interest for me include studies in trans-disciplinary fields such as geomicrobiology and exobiology/astrobiology in a context of planetary protection and determining the limits of Life.
